RESOLVED that after the initial implementation work this spring, the committee becomes the University Ethnic Studies Committee (UESC), a standing committee of the ASCSUDH; and be it further,

RESOLVED that the attached two policies & procedures be adopted to establish the aforementioned committees; and be it further,

RESOLVED that the ASCSUDH distribute this resolution to:

- President of CSUDH
- Provost
- Deans
- Faculty,
- Staff, and
- Associated Students Inc.

Rationale:

On August 18, 2020, Governor Newsom signed AB 1460 into law. The law now requires that all California State University students successfully complete at least one ethnic studies course as part of the requirements for graduation. The passage of the bill is part of a longer history of recommendations by CSU faculty for an ethnic studies requirement. In January 2016, the CSU Ethnic Studies Task Force released the Report of the California State University Task Force on the Advancement of Ethnic Studies, which summarizes the findings of the 23-member task force, appointed in January 2014 by Chancellor White. The key recommendation was to make ethnic studies a GE requirement throughout the CSU system. Until 2019-2020 no action was taken to set such a requirement.¹ On June 18, 2020, the California Senate voted to pass AB-1460 California State University: Graduation Requirement: Ethnic Studies. On August 3, 2020, the California State Assembly also passed AB 1460. On July 22, 2020, the California State University (CSU) Board of Trustees voted to approve an amendment to Title 5 of the California Code of Regulations to modify the university's General Education (GE) requirements to include a course addressing ethnic studies and social justice. The Chancellor’s Office has updated the CSU General Education Breadth Requirements to include Area F Ethnic Studies, the five core competencies recommended the CSU Council of Ethnic Studies and agreed upon by the Academic Senate of the CSU, and the Chancellor’s Office.

CSUDH has already taken steps to prepare to offer ethnic studies courses as part of graduation requirements. In academic year 2019-2020, a CSUDH General Education Assessment Working Group took up the question of Ethnic Studies as part of the Academic Senate’s goal of assessing and updating our University Cultural Pluralism Requirement. The General Education Assessment Working Group held a town hall in December 2019 and presented the overall recommendations of the working group at Senate on February 19, 2020. The Senate Executive committee met with the Dean of Undergraduate Studies who organized the working group. The Senate also used the letter signed by faculty and staff across the campus and the Department of Africana Studies Statement. We have based the guiding principles and the structure of the proposed University Ethnic Studies Committee on the collective feedback from these meetings and documents and now the mandates from the Board of Trustees October 2, 2020 Title 5 Updates and the Chancellor’s Office December 3, 2020 updates to EO 1100 and the CSU General Education Breadth Requirements.

First, ethnic studies, as a single discipline or the four core group disciplines conceptually engage as a combined and interrelated field of study, is defined by its primary focus on race and ethnicity, as distinct from other disciplines that engage this as one among many subjects. Secondly, its scholarship and teaching are grounded and centered in the cultures, concrete-lived conditions, and living histories of peoples of color. Thus, thirdly, it has an explicit commitment to linking scholarship, teaching and learning to social engagement (service and struggle), social change, and social justice. In this process, it advocates and generates cooperative and collaborative initiatives between campus and community, i.e., between the university and the core group communities, and the larger society. Ethnic studies’ methodologies place strong emphases on the critical study and support of the agency of peoples of color, and thus is concerned with how they conceive, construct and develop themselves, create and sustain culture.
and meaning and engage in self-affirmation and opposition in resistance to societal oppressions of varied forms. It, thus, is also concerned with a critical understanding of the impact of the continuing histories and current conditions of oppression and resistance to conquest, colonialism, physical and cultural genocide, enslavement, segregation, lynching, racism, and various racial and racialized forms of social and structural violence, domination, degradation and destructive practices.

Drawing from historically rooted and constantly developing intellectual traditions of each core group and engaging bodies of relevant knowledge across disciplines, ethnic studies is committed to methodological practice that is interdisciplinary, comparative, intersectional, international and transnational. It therefore explores the interrelatedness and intersection of race and ethnicity with class, gender and sexuality and other forms of difference, hierarchy and oppression. And it also engages transnational and global issues, appreciating the four core groups’ identities, cultures, histories and socio-political contexts as diasporic communities that represent the demographic majority on the planet, and as members of American society which has shaped and continues to shape world history, producing scholarship of national and global importance that impacts the various interrelated realities that impinge the development of civil society both domestically and throughout the world. Finally, ethnic studies is defined by its initial and continuing commitment to create intellectual and institutional space for the unstudied, understudied, marginalized and misrepresented peoples of color, spaces in which their lives and struggles are the subject of rigorous, original and generative scholarship, their voice and systems of knowledge are given due recognition and respect, and they are supported intellectually and practically in their struggles to push their lives forward and cooperate in building a truly just, equitable, democratic and multicultural society.
