News and Information for CSUDH Alumni and Friends

Sam Enriquez: Above the Fold at the Wall Street Journal

Sam Enriquez

Just a month after his promotion to national news editor of the Wall Street Journal in 2008, Sam Enriquez found himself reaching back more than two decades to his courses in economics from California State University, Dominguez Hills.

That fall, Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc., a global financial services firm and then the fourth-largest investment bank in the U.S., declared bankruptcy, ushering in a historic autumn of frozen credit markets and government bailouts as the national and global economy teetered on the brink of collapse. After years of reporting and editing general news, Enriquez said, with understatement, that what he learned in his macroeconomics classes would “prove immensely important” in helping him understand, interpret and help edit the daily onslaught of news that evolved into the biggest story of the decade.

CSUDH Black History Month

Steven Moreau

It was something his late father would often tell him:

“When you come to a fork in the road, take it. And it doesn’t matter which path you take because what you do is you make the most of whatever path you choose.”
