MGT 200: GLOBAL ORGANIZATION ETHICS & SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

In this course we will cover key issues involving ethics and social responsibility in global organizations. We will examine the ethical issues involving self-interest, power, greed, charisma, duty, loyalty, and culture. Ethical concepts and theories such as utilitarianism and the moral rights approach are explored. Students will learn about the roles and duties of ethical leaders and their followers. Ultimately, we will study what we should do and who we should be in the 21st century. Students will be challenged to think critically, discuss, and debate what it means to do the right thing in a borderless world in this new century. Three (3) unit course
