The CSUDH Center for Innovation in STEM Education is a leader in preparing the next generation of STEM educators.

The Male Success Alliance is the first CSU program to focus on improving access, retention and graduation rates of boys and men of color.

DYMALLY
INSTITUTE

The CSUDH Mervyn M. Dymally African American Political & Economic Institute is to be a nationally-renowned academic and thought leader in scholarly research, public policy engagement, and academic programs and projects focused in African American communities in California and nationwide.

SOUTH BAY
ECONOMICS
INSTITUTE

The South Bay Economics Institute at CSUDH aims to lead the South Bay region with innovative and forward-thinking economics education and research.

CSUDH's Orthotics and Prosthetics is one of only 12 accredited programs in the country producing O&P practitioners.

CSUDH has the only Occupational Therapy master's program at a public university in Southern California. The 2018 passage of Assembly Bill 829 paves the way for CSUDH to become the first public university in the region to offer a Doctorate in Occupational Therapy.

Improving Life in the Los Angeles Region

As the only public four-year university in the South Bay region of Los Angeles County, CSU Dominguez Hills serves as a critical academic, economic and cultural resource for the greater community. Through its relevant academic programs, the university plays a proactive role in shaping a competitive, well-qualified workforce that is vital to a thriving economy. CSU Dominguez Hills' positive impact can be measured not only by the more than 100,000 alumni who have successfully completed their degrees from the university, but also by what those individuals are doing with their education. CSU Dominguez Hills alumni are business leaders, creators, educators, entrepreneurs, working professionals, and public servants who value the importance of contributing in positive ways to their community, state and nation.
