

Which Psychology Graduate Program is Right for Me?

With Dr. Kaylie Carbine
Department of Psychology

MARCH 14

2:30 PM-3:30 PM

II 2270

Innovation & Instruction Building

Interested in a psychology graduate degree? Confused on which of the many psychology programs would be best for your interests and career goals? Then this workshop is for you! This workshop will introduce to students the different types of graduate programs that are available to them in the field of psychology: master's in social work, master's in marriage and family therapy, master's in experimental or clinical psychology, PhD in experimental or clinical psychology, PsyD in psychology...etc. Students will not only receive a brief overview of the programs and their differences, but also information about the career opportunities that follow in order to help students make an informed decision on which type of graduate program is best for them.